

The next Congress.—The whigs boast that they will elect their Speaker, and control the Legislative Department of the Government. We think that day will be a great mistake, as the following statement, taken from the Globe, of the Congressional elections held and to be held, will show. The estimated vote in N. Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee may be too favorable to the Administration, but there is no prospect of the election of a majority of democratic members from Maryland and Indiana. A part of the Georgia delegation too may support the administration. Unless the elections in Ind. should turn out much more unfavorably to the democratic cause than anticipated, the Administration will have a majority of at least ten in the House of Representatives.

We have great cause for rejoicing in the close of this contest, as the people of old Virginia have shown themselves true to the principles of Jefferson and Taylor. They have struck terror into the ranks of the Leigh and Rivers faction. The State now stands disenthralled and free, and she will cast a more unanimous vote for the re-election of Mr. Van Buren in 1840, than has been given by her for many years.—Old Dominion.

The following, which we find without credit in an exchange paper, will make the reader laugh, and thereby do some good: “A poor single man is a creature who has to hold his nose to the grindstone; and a poor married man is one who has his nose held to the grind stone.”

Scars in a Sucker Court.—The Illinoisan tells the following amusing story of a scene that occurred during the sitting of one of the Illinois Circuit Courts.

A constable who had lately been inducted into office was in attendance on the Court, and was ordered by the Court to call John Bell and Elizabeth Bell. He immediately began, at the top of his lungs, John Bell and Elizabeth Bell; ‘one at a time, said the judge.’

“One at a time, one at a time, one at a time,” shouted the constable.

“Now you’ve done it, now you’ve done it, now you’ve done it!” yelled the constable.

“Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for such is the Kingdom of Heaven.”

YANKEE GIRLS.

The gay gypsies, whose fingers touch
Love a thousand chords so well;
The dark Italian, loving much,
But more than one can tell;

And England’s fair-haired, blue-eyed dame,
Who binds her brow with pearls:

Ye who have seen them—can they shame
Our own sweet Yankee girls?

From the Globe.

FROM FLORIDA.—It gives us great pleasure to announce the arrival at the seat of Government of Major General Mexican, who has succeeded in pacifying the Indians of Florida, and has made such an arrangement with them as will effectually put a stop to the further effusion of blood in that Territory. The country to be occupied provisionally by the Indians is situated beyond all former settlements, and the courses of posts established across the peninsula from New Smyrna to Tampa Bay will be furnished with a sufficient number of troops to ensure a faithful observance of the terms dictated by Gen. Mexican, both by the whites and the red men.

We again say to Texas be prepared for war; organize and number your militia.—N. O. Bul.

But we say to Texas, prepare an army of 50,000 men, carry the war into the enemies country and plant your “single star flag” on the walls of Mexico. Then, and then only can you have peace and command the respect of other nations.—N. O. True American.

So we say—it is the only hope for Texas—Mexico otherwise will never permit that “long star” to loom in undisturbed serenity. It is the course dictated by the laws of self-preservation. The Texan war-cry should be—O'erward to the City of the Incas!

From the domes of that venerable Capitol, we hope many revolving years have sped their flight, to see the Texan banner unfurled to the breezes of heaven, waving in triumph over the course of history. The Texan war-cry should be—O'erward to the City of the Incas!

Take no fashionable medicine. You want no medicine. You want health. You want to remove the morty cobsweb and the gloomy fancies from your brain; you want to purify your dull sluggish blood; you want to invigorate your salivous, inert body; you want in fine, to rejuvenate your whole system.—And you will effect this, thank you by swallowing dirty medicine! Will you strengthen yourself by dosing and drugging, and swallowing pills? Not at all. We repeat, you don’t want medicine, you want Health.

And how will you obtain it? Why simply thus, leave your close, dusty shop, for a few days; drop your implements of labor—your pens, your yard sticks, your files or saws, or whatever tools you use, start for the country, visit your relations—farmers that live fifty or a hundred miles off; take a stout walking stick in your hand, ramble over all the country round about, through the woods, and over the hills; snuff the clear air, eat some plain, nourishing food; throw off your thick heavy flannels and under clothes, take a cold bath every morning; dig, plough, run or walk, yourself into a perspiration, and rub your whole body with a stiff brush or a coarse towel, until the bright glow of health returns to your cheek, and strength and activity to your limbs; until your mind regains its original clearness and buoyancy and your stomach its wonted tone and its strong digestive powers.

This is the way to get Health. Don’t try to buy it of doctors and apothecaries. Go and take it, without money and without price, in the open laboratory of nature. You will find it beneath the green sod, in the bosom of your mother earth, where the doctor never comes. You will find it floating along in the clear brooks, or upon the very summits of rock-bound hills. Go away from the hot brick walls and the scorching walls of the city, and you will discover the precious remedy you seek in the tall waving grass of the country—in the midst of the bright flowers—on the 14th instant. The Brothren will march in procession at 11 o’clock A. M. from the Lodge to the Episcopal Church, where an address will be delivered by Doct. MATTHEWS. Transient Brothers are respectfully invited to join the celebration.

ST. JOHN from the subscriber on Sunday night, June 2nd, a large black HORSE. He has a white spot in his forehead—a scar on his left hind foot, caused by a scald, and white feet. It is supposed that he was taken off by a negro, and that the negro will endeavor to make his way to Tennessee or Ohio. A liberal reward will be given to any person who will give me any information concerning said horse. A letter addressed to me at Santerre, Ala., containing this information will be thankfully received.
